Period Products in Schools by State

Know Your State

- Required without funding
- No requirement or funding
- Required and funded in schools
- Funding is available

Period Products in Schools

Quick Facts

1 in 4 students struggle to afford period products*

86% of people who menstruate have started their periods unexpectedly in public

2.4% increase in attendance reported among participating NYC schools following passage of law requiring free period products for students *from 2021 State of the Period

Reasons to Support Period Products in Schools

- Reduces period poverty
- Fosters gender equity and enables all students to attend class
- Reduces disruptions and increases time spent in class
- Toilet paper, also a basic necessity, is provided to all students
- 1 in 3 low-income women miss work, school, and other events due to lack of access

Different States, Different Laws

Each state that has passed legislation requiring period products in schools has passed a unique bill.

Some states have funding attached to their bills and some do not. Some states require only middle and high schools to have products, while other states also require elementary schools and public colleges and universities.

Additional Resources

The Alliance for Period Supplies has additional resources to assist those who are interested supporting legislation that addresses period poverty.

For additional materials, please visit: allianceforperiodsupplies.org/policy-legislation/

Additional Materials Include: Model Legislation, Student Advocacy Toolkit, and Menstrual Equity Legislative Tracker.

For additional resources and information contact:
Lacey Gero
Manager of State Policy
lacey@diaperbanknetwork.org 203-408-2140
allianceforperiodsupplies.org